ONLY TWO PARTIES. in all republican governments statesmen have insisted that two great political parties are essential to a correct and honest administration on the part of officials. With two parties confronting each other, both are put party out of power watch with vigilance their opponents, ready to expose all shortcomings. It will be a woful day for the American republic if one party becomes so strong and powerful as to crush out all opposition. Then the country will drift into corruption and the offices will be filled by persons who will rob the people without fear of molestation or defeat. For ten years, commencing in 1860, the Republican party was invincible. It was in power in every northern State and ruled with an iron hand. There was only thirty Democrats in congress, and in the north the Republicans had no opposition; Democrats were socially ostracised, and for daring to doubt the infallibility prison. The strength of the Republican party and its supposed invincibility made it insolent and arrogant, and finally caused it to drift into corruption which produced the tidal wave of 1874. Since the formation of our government there have been two great political parties, and there always will be. The Republican party will live only so long as it can keep alive the mad passions born in war. It will be confronted by the Democratic party, founded on principles which are fundamental and eternal. In the approaching contest the country will have to choose between either the party of peace and the party of sectional bate. Grant will unquestionably be the Republican candidate for the Pre-idency. The unprecedented cyations which have been extended to him mean something more than the usual honors extended to an ex-President. The country knows what Grant rule means, and it must prepare to vote for him or his Democratic opponent. The Greenback or the National party is as dead as the Know-Nothing party of 1856. It has been "buried in the tomb of obsolete ideas," and is now as dead as the many other ephemeral parties which have attempted to rise upon the ruins of the two great parties of the country. Resumption, the prospect of better times, and the fact that all over the country millions of dollars were hoarded up in the banks, has shown the fallacy of the Greenback policy. If the hard times had continued, and the general distress increased, the Greenback party would have been formidable in future elections. The belief that Courier-Journal. On the fourth instant a conference was held at Indianapolis at which, besides the State central committee, there were present Senators Voorhees and M'Donald, Ex-Governor Hendricks, Governor Williams, Ex Governor English, and several congressmen. Senator Voorhees and Governor Hendricks expressed themselves as impressed with the importance of conciliating John Kelly, the Tammany chieftain, for without him, they think, New York cannot be carried by the party, and without New York the Presidential ticket will be defeated. Congressman Cobb was implacable, and de- the Radical candidates for the Presidency, manded Kelly's excommunication. If that proves so, Hendricks for President, but it was not deemed prudent to make his nomination a necessity, if a more available man was presented. Dissatisfaction was expressed at Hendricka's determination not to accept the Taft, Garfield, Foster, Thurman, Dennison, second place, and if he should decline, then and a host of lesser fry are "aiming" for it. FROM a New York special to the St. Louis Republican we learn that General Joe Hooker s said to have left a handsome fortune, which will probably go to his sisters, Mrs. Brainard and Mrs. Wood, of Watertown, New York. Among his effects is a large picture of the battle of Lookout mountain, or which he paid twenty-five thousand dollars. He left many important papers, which will probably be printed in some appropriate shape. He had prepared with the assistance to be hanged. of Mr. Bates, of Cincinnati, a book on the battle of Chancellorsville, now in the pubishers' hands, and was about to begin a book on the famous engagement on Lookout countain. He expected to make this a notable work, and military men deeply regret that his purpose should remain unfulfilled. General Hooker left no will, as far as i

THE Canadians do not appear to be real izing the "era of good feeling" and gush of prosperity they hoped for when they started their protective system as a safeguard from the energetic modes of doing business common to the United States. Among other things they now complain that the high rate of ocean freights there is driving trade to New York. There is good hoping thereby to retain power; and the stuff in the Dominion, but it is under very incompetent management.

Wно is to succeed Zach Chandler? That the question that just now agitates the mind of the average Republican in Michigan. The Detroit Evening News thinks that Ex-Governor Bagley will be appointed by Governor Cresswell to fill the vacancy until the legislature meets, and the Cincinnati Enquirer's correspondent declares that Ex-Governor Bagley, Ex-Governor Baldwin and Congressman Waldron, three of the richest men in Michigan, are the only candidates seriously discussed for the place. Congressman Burrows and State Senators Harry Coof the dominant party were hustled off to but all are poor men, and neither have a

> SENATOR BECK is of the opinion that the New York election finally disposes of Tilden. "Personally," he says, "I am for Hancock. There will undoubtedly go forth a boom for Bayard, but I tell you the western people don't want him and won't have him. It may be that Horatio Seymour or Sanford E Church will come to the front. Bayard will be weak, because, even with a solid south and the vote of New York, the Democracy are not out of the woods. They need Indiana, and Bayard would not be a popular candidate with the people of that State."

> THE Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer states that "there is a very general sentiment among sensible Democrats that New York and Indiana will furnish the head and tail of the ticket. It may be Tilden and an Indiana man, or Hendricks and a New York man-Clarkson N. Potter, for instance. Of one thing there is a certainty, that the Democrats feel that they have more than a fighting chance left for 1880, and the Republicans ill-humoredly concede the claim."

OUR THEATER is to open for the season on the seventeenth instant. Modern in Method. Thorough in Work. Non-sectarian in Character.

THE Principal of the school takes this method of saying to the people of Memphis, that Education, in its one true sense, is the object of her work, and that her school for girls is the result of a close and careful study of the best school systems and the best thought of the leading educators of the world. All false and injurious processes of artificial growth have been carefully avoided, and only such methods used as will secure a full, healthy and harmonious growth toward and into a true womanly womanhood. As heretofore, Physical Culture will receive the attention its importance demands. Education after the method of the Boston School of receive the attention its importance demands. Education after the method of the Boston School of Oratory. Object lessons in the Primary Department upon the plau defined by Prof. Goodale, of Harvard University, and daily lessons in every department upon Health, Current Events and Topics of General Interest. Drawing will be included in the Primary Course, and French in the Intermediate. A thorough three-years course in English Literature, by extra work in the study of German and French authors.

The Principal of the school will give her personal attention to each department. The Principal of the school will give her personal attention to each department.

The KINDEBGARTEN will be under the charge of Mrs. R. C. James, an accomplished graduate of the training-school of Mrs. A. B. Ogden. Number limited to twenty. As this is the only Kindergarten in Memphis, and as no parent should be willing to deprive a little one of this beautiful mental, moral and physicial health giver, it is important that application for seats be made at once.

Pupils in all departments are expected to enter at the beginning of the term.
